How to vote in this Statesboro election

Statesboro voting opened this morning for the mayoral elections and a referendum deciding if liquor stores should be allowed within city limits.

Statesboro-registered voters can vote for mayor and on the liquor store referendum which will decide if alcohol sales in Statesboro stores can expand to include liquor. Without this vote passing, it will take two years to reappear on the ballot.

To cast your vote as a Statesboro resident, go to the city precinct, on 150 Williams Rd in the William James Educational Complex lunchroom, from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday November 2.

A photo ID is required to vote, which can be any federal or state-issued ID like a drivers license, military ID, voter ID, passport ID or tribal photo ID.

The deadline for an absentee ballot has already passed; however if you already got yours, you can just swing by and drop your completed ballot anytime while the polls are open Tuesday.
